1. Yvonne Coull opened the meeting and welcomed everyone. She explained a little about the background of GWT for those who had not attended before. She explained the format of the meeting and informed the group that there would be time at the end to have a short discussion and introductions around the room.
2. Helen Foster, Royal Commission on the Ancient Monuments of Scotland introduced SCRAN, a digital database of photos and videos. See SCRAN web site. <http://www.scran.ac.uk/> Helen explained the different facets of SCRAN through a power point presentation which we hope to be able to post on the network page shortly. Scran is a charity & online learning resource base with over 370,000 images & media from museums, galleries, and archives. It is possible to search the whole resource base for free and buy downloadable images at publishing quality. Free access is available in Aberdeen through the libraries for education and community projects and this can also be accessed through the library web site online (if you are a library member). Helen described how the images could be used in intergenerational projects such as reminiscence or to provide background information or talking points. The images could also be used as posters and post cards (as long as these were not sold). If you are interested in use for a project and are not sure then please contact Helen direct through the SCRAN web site – she will be happy to help.
3. GWT Education Resources: Yvonne Coull then explained the content of all the education resources which are available on the GWT Website (see below) and copies were handed out to those who were interested. Yvonne said that to accompany the resources 12 education case studies were added to the GWT web site along with Amazing Things which lists awards which young people can work towards. GWT has added awards for older people to the web site and Yvonne asked that if those attending heard of an award that was not listed could they let her know where to find the information to add to the GWT list.
4. GWT Update – Yvonne provided the GWT update as noted below.
5. Round Table Discussion: the members then introduced themselves and a short discussion was held regarding intergenerational practice in the area and what future meetings might hold.
