

Activity for measuring outcomes and social impact of Intergenerational Practice

Step one

Set evaluation objectives: please tick which ones are most relevant to your project or activity

- To bring together people in activities that fosters greater understanding between older and younger people
- To ensure that intergenerational activities involve both older and younger people in a way that that lowers the stereotypical views each generation hold (perhaps even stigma and discriminatory attitudes and behaviours) towards each other
- To lower social isolation of older people
- To increase levels of respect between both older and younger people that contributes to lowering the stereotypical views each generation hold towards each other
- To remove barriers – social, physical, cultural and institutional - so that older and younger people adjust their attitudes in such a way that increase the chances of lowering instance of intolerance, stigma and discrimination
- To grow young people's confidence to speak to older adults

Do you have more objectives? Write here

Activity for measuring outcomes and social Impact of Intergenerational Practice

Step two

Complete all of the coloured boxes below to plan how you will evaluate your project's or activity's outcomes and social impact

Inputs	Outputs	Outcomes	Impacts

To evaluate my project I will collect evidence by undertaking the following research with all parties: